MEN OF THE SOIL" RULE IN BULGARIAN POLITICS

Peasants and Farmers Control Government and Make Progress From Former Chaos.

SOFIA, BULGARIA, Nov. 6 .- Probrule of the peasants or farmers than Bulgaria. Politically and industrialful factors in the life of the nation ful factors in the life of the nation. They enjoy a majority representation in the government, and the whole future of the country may be said to rest in their hands. Of the present Cablinet of seven members, six are peasants, including M. Stambuliwsky, the Prime Minister.

In the Bulgarian Parliament there are 110 deputies who are "men of the soil." They call themselves the Agrarian party. The next strongest political group comprises less than forty members. Net only do the peas-soll." They call themselves the Agraflan party. The next strongest political group comprises less than forty members. Not only do the peasants control the government, but the whole economic structure of the country has its basis in their toil. For Bulgaria is an agricultural country.

There is little manufacturing, mining or shipping. While the peasants are in power, there is little danger of the ascendency of bolshevism, for each inhabitant cwns his own land and is content with what he has.

As the peasants have come into control, the professional politicians have passed out. The so-called intellectual classes have had their way, and the repulation is content now to give the peasants a chance. They are doing well. They have taken hold of the country at the most critical conomic and financial period in its history and are making wonderful strides toward bringing the kingdom back to normal. Old-time politicians and statesmen are viewing the scene with amazement, if not with admiration.

Led by their powerful leader, M.

Led by their powerful leader. M. Stambuliwsky, who is a man of great wisdom and practical commen sense, the peasants are introducing many reforms and numerous innovations in the government. Perhaps the most novel scheme they have is the so-called "labor army." whose ranks include every able-bodied inhabitant of the country. The underlying principle of it is that every man above twenty and every weening and overy weening and contribute his or her proportionate share of h bor to the reconstruction, development and immoney ready, willing and anxious to be invested in coal mining in this construction, development and improvement of the country. One group of workers, for example, give a certain part of their time to the building of railways, bridges and roads, another to the drainage of lowlands or the development of irrigation; a third to improvement of the soil; a fourth to the study of reversers. fourth to the study of governmental and administrative problems, and so

Another idea introduced by the Another idea introduced by the beasants is the purchase and sale by the government, at minimum prices, of all things needed for the life of the people. This is intended as an emergency measure to relieve the present high prices and improve the rate of exchange. The purchasing is done largely in foreign markets and in such quantities as to insure the lowest prices. Distributing these goods direct to the consumer, the government eliminates the middle man, and the people get the goods at the lowest prices.

D FOUR SUSPECTS IN LITTLE MURDER CASE BENEDICT XV. IS PATRON OF ART AND SCULPTURE

Pwo Artists Have Studies on Vatican Grounds for Work on Religious Subjects. By Associated Press.]

ROME, Nov. 6 .- Although the popes of today cannot afford to spend enormous sums on artists, sculptors and decorators as did the Pontiffs of the renaissance. Benedict XV., is a patron of the arts, and has allowed two artists to have studies and work on the grounds of the Vatican. They are Quadroni, the the Vatican. They are Quadroni, the sculptor, who at the Pope's expense is modelling a more than life-size statue of the Cardinal Rampolla for his monument in the Church of Santa Cacilian and the artist Antonelli, who is painting a huge picture of the promulgation of the codex of canon law.

The picture of Benedict XV. seated on a throne, receiving from his co-worker, Cardinal Gasparri, the volumes containing the newly codified canon law, represents fifty-two figures, all portraits of the ecclesiasti and lay court of the Pontiff. There are to be seen ten cardinals, the Pope's Majordomo, Monsignor Tacci; his master of chamber, Monsignor de Samper; the grand marshals, who have charge of the great Vatican ceremonies and wear the picturesque renaissance dress of ruff and doublet; the commanders of the Noble guard, the Swiss guard, and many others, Fo the picture will have considerable historic interest in the future.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 .- Fears are entertained for the safety of two Americans at Urga, the capital of Outer Mongolia, which has been at tacked by armed Russians, Buriats and Mongols, the State Department announced today.

The Americans are named Mills and McLaughlin. Mills is an engineer and McLaughlin an employe of the Mongolian Trade Company. has made urgent representations to the Chinese government to afford every possible protection. Friends of Mills and McLaughlin are organizing a rescue party to bring the two men to safety. The party would conist of twelve armed Americans and the Chinese government has been to Urga.

Chinese soldiers were reported to be looting Russian residences in Urga. Telegraph lines have been cut and all communications with the town stopped.

S. A. L. PASSENGER TRAIN DERAILED NEAR RALEIGH

RALEIGH, N. C., Nev. 6 .- The engine and five express and baggage have considerable historic interest in the future.

Round the enermous frame there are portraits of past Popes, who have specially interested themselves in the codification of the canon law. Plus N., Boniface VIII., Inocent III. Alexander II., Gregory IX. and Benedict XIV.

The block of Carrara marble for Quadroni's statue of Cardinal Rampolla weighs nineteen tons and the statue will be over six feed and nine inches high, with an angel in high relief behind it. The monument will eventually be placed in the Basilica of Santa Cecilia in Trastevere, which was Cardinal Rampolla's titular church, the lower part of which he restored gorgeously in 1901.

Benedict XV, frequently visits the studies of both these artists, advising with them as so the work which they are carrying out for him.

to Man and Machine.

One of the most interesting tour stories that has come to light in some time is published by American Motor, the leading automobile publication of the Dark Continent.

It details a trip made by a Maxwell car from Johannesburg to Commando Nek and has as many thrills as a seven-reel movie.

The writer of the article says:
"A Maxwell 1929 model was under trial and the route was selected to insure a grueiling test that would uncover every weak point of the car.
Our party of four started and soon we were going down and up, up and down, crossing river beds that were exceedingly steep on both sides.
"Commencing to drop down the narly seven miles descent to the Crocodile River, there was a forecast of what would be found on the other side of that river in the shape of storm cut cross drains, not noticeable until the car was almost on top. The first of these that was strucky—actually not figuratively—could not be avoided and had to be taken full on and at nearly 15 miles per hour. The passengers were somewhat bounced, yet not badly, but the pedal brake was jammed hard on, for I did not suppose the car springs could have withstoed such a fearful strain. Before reaching the river, at least half a dozen more of these terrors were encountered just wide enough to force the wheels to drop in six inches to twelve inches deep. How good is the springing of the 1920 Maxwell was thoroughly exemplified hereabouts: one of the lady passengers who has been in so many cars that she can be reckoned a connoisseur,
